

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

Sonoma, Sonoma County, Cal., Feb. 16, 1907.

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.

At the Hands Of the Press.

To throw him out or not?
That should have been the question.
Whether it would have been nobler in the mind
To endure the arrows of his outrageous articles,
Or to take up arms and throw him out
And by opposing end them.

Such should have been the soliloquy of the Legislature ere it took action against E. J. Livernash and barred him, from those murky precincts by the Sacramento. The gentlemen missed their calculation when they thought to crush the writer in question, for the crushing process has forced out words that the legislators fain would have unuttered and under force of the circumstances Livernash's pen revels in its best beloved style. They had their fling when they flung him out, but now he is having his and he flings his pen and dips its deep into blackest ink.

It is always a dangerous experiment to try and shackle and antagonize the press. Children are taught to keep on the good side of their teacher. Their elders should not forget to keep on the good side of the editor. The newspaper is the greatest megaphone in the world.

The writer who is now taking out his vengeance on the law-making body at our State capitol was at one time editor of this paper and we tremble at the thought of the vituperative development and what might have been if he had continued to live here and applied his vocabulary to things local. He would have made our little sphere hum. The city dads would sit up and take notice; the board of trade and board of health would take to the hills and everybody would take the paper. In the event of any radical discussion or occurrence here, we should at once annex Mr. Livernash to our staff. As a finisher we would prefer him to Jim Jeffries or Cockey O'Brien.

It is not our policy to start trouble, however. Praise, peace harmony and laudation—this is the language we like to dabble in. If unpleasantness arise we "blot the ill with tears" wherever we can. If we cannot do this we let it go in black and white printers ink, but we never whitewash. Mr. Livernash is an extremist in the treatment of public affairs, but his work is nevertheless art—dubbed black art in blank verse by those affected.

Fail In Their Purpose.

There is a deep underlying problem involved in the question of fraternities in our schools. That problem is whether the results of such organizations justify their existence and maintenance. Undoubtedly all fraternities are symbolic of good and elevating in tone but on the whole they are not diffusing or disseminating enough good feeling or promoting enough harmony on the outside to absolve them from the just criticism to which they are now subject.

It is not only in these organizations of schools and colleges that the evil results outweigh the good intended but in many other social groups and societies we meet with the same condition of affairs. They benefit a few but in the zeal to be beneficent to these, their members forget the big majority on the outside and the broad creed of christianity and the precept of brotherly love.

Such organizations as fraternities beget in the young mind the false ideas of brotherly love and as a result a chosen few are treated with the right spirit, but the golden rule is reserved for just these while others are ignored and come to feel slighted, neglected and snubbed. It were far better if these false ideas were not engendered with the resulting bitterness and antagonism. We all have a right to chose our friends and gather about us our own kind, but there should be no crystalized formation or narrow organization to disintegrate the great broad creed of humanity. The objects of the organizations in question are excellent but the results are not what they should be.

ONE of the chaplains of the legislature says that he got very close to the Senators and Assemblymen but smelled not a whiff of liquor. This may be accounted for in various ways.

THE bunko victim who stole his deceiver's clothes now has a different kind of a suit on his hands than he bargained for.

THE president is said to have explained the usage of the term "basson" by calling it a play on words.

IN RUSSIA the general who is waiting in popularity throws bombs at himself instead of boquets.

Girlhood and Scott's Emulsion are linked together.

The girl who takes Scott's Emulsion has plenty of rich, red blood; she is plump, active and energetic.

The reason is that at a period when a girl's digestion is weak, Scott's Emulsion provides her with powerful nourishment in easily digested form.

It is a food that builds and keeps up a girl's strength.

Hunting for Trouble.

"I've lived in California 20 years and am still hunting for trouble in the way of burns, sores, wounds, boils, tuts, sprains, or a case of piles that Bucklen's Arnica Salve won't quickly cure," writes Charles Walters of Alleghany, Sierra Co. ### Gold Watch Contest.

George Breitenbach and Mr. Luce of the Sonoma Valley Bank made the award of the little gold watch, St. Valentine's day at Eastland's Pharmacy. The three nearest counts to the eight-day clock's stopping time was two minutes, made by Mrs. E. H. Johannsen, Master Donald Campbell, Sonoma, and Miss Eleanor Kehoe, Scheilville. The committee leaves the three to arrange as to who shall be the new owner of the gold watch. It was quite a most interesting contest and many came within the quarter hour, but the three bore off the palms in closeness of time.

Is this Your Wife?

You say: "No!" But she should remind you of a duty you owe your wife. If she has one of the old-fashioned, troublesome, cumbersome, cast-iron Cook Stoves—the kind that gets red hot all over—you can end all her kitchen troubles by buying her a "Quick Meal" Range.

The "Quick Meal" Steel Range is so thickly lined with Asbestos that all the heat is kept inside the Range to bake and cook the meals, instead of cooking the Cook. In that way it saves fuel and it also saves and sweetens temper.

"Quick Meal" Ranges are daily growing in popularity. They look well, they cook well, they bake well, they last well. That is why there are so many in use—every one recommends another.

See Haven About It . . .

We also have twenty different styles in Quick Meal Blue Flame, Evaporating and Gasoline Stoves, ranging in price from two to thirty dollars.

Here's the solution of the Fuel Problem.

From a given amount of wood the Wilson Heater will produce twice as much heat as any other. It is because the Down-Draft consumes all the fuel and the gases which arise from it, whereas in other heaters the gases, which constitute one-half the burnable part of the fuel, escape unburned up the chimney. You can start a fire in ten minutes and hold it for 36 hours.

Remember, it is fuel cost which counts. The Wilson saves one-half your fuel bill.

The firemen held their annual banquet at the Union Hotel last Wednesday night. The city officials were guests of honor of the fire laddies. ## SONOMA MAY DEAL IN S. F. COURTS

Warrant Issued For Arrest of an Alleged Offender.

A warrant was issued from Judge Shortall's Court, San Francisco, the latter part of last week, for the arrest of C. H. Porter who, until lately was farming a portion of the Watriss ranch, near Agua Caliente.

The warrant was sworn to by "Paddy" Swift, the San Francisco lumber dealer, who claimed he bought forty tons of hay from Porter for $12 per ton, paying $275 down to bind the bargain. A few days after he went to the Watriss ranch to get his hay and pay the balance due on the deal. Swift found the hay stored in a barn on the ranch all right but was dumbfounded to learn that the hay had been mortgaged to F. Duhring, a leading merchant of this place, for its full market value.

"Paddy" Swift is on the war path and with blood in his eye is after Porter, who is now somewhere in San Francisco, and says he will prosecute him for having mortgaged the hay after he had bought it and made the first payment on the deal.

Now Plying on the San Joaquin.

Captain J. F. Scheller of the twin-screw propeller Sonoma has taken his boat off the run between San Francisco and Sonoma and she is now engaged in freighting on the San Joaquin river. This move is temporarily only and when the fruit season opens the Sonoma will resume business on her old run. Owing to the lack of interest among the merchants of Sonoma in an enterprise that is essentially beneficial to their town Captain Scheller's boat has not received the patronage that it was entitled to. The farmers of the valley, however, have taken very kindly to a service that gives them freight competition by both land and water to and from the metropolis and have been liberal patrons of the boat.

When the Sonoma resumes her run between Schell's landing and San Francisco for the fruit trade in the spring we trust that Captain Scheller's investment and the public spirit and enterprise that goes with it will be more appreciated by our people in the future than it has in the past.

Firemen Elect Officers.

At the annual election of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Company, held last Wednesday evening, all the old officers were re-elected to serve another year as follows: President, F. T. Duhring; chief, J. E. Poppe; first assistant chief, G. S. Harris; second assistant chief, Sam Lewis; secretary, Jas. H. Albertson; treasurer, W. F. Clewe; foreman hook and ladder truck, George Engler; foreman hose cart, Geo. Breitenbach; foreman engine, Peter G. Keil; steward, H. Pooler.

Ladies' Aid Society.

Fifty members of the Ladies' Aid Society were present at the regular monthly meeting held at the residence of Mrs. G. H. Hotz last Tuesday. The society is in a flourishing condition and is gaining in membership right along. It is the intention of the ladies to give a bazaar in May.

Daily Call and INDEX-TRIBUNE $9 per year.

Pure Blood

Is certain if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This great medicine cures those eruptions, pimples and boils that appear at all seasons; cures scrofula sores, salt rheum or eczema; adapts itself equally well to, and also cures, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles; cures rheumatism and catarrh; cures nervous troubles, debility and that tired feeling.

Sarsapabls have identically the same curative properties as the liquid form, besides accuracy of dose, convenience, economy—no loss by evaporation, breakage, or leakage. Drugists or promptly by mail. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

GUARANTEED under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30, 1906. No. 324

"When Betsy and I are Out."

The Skillmans of El Verano have gone to law over their little ranch in that place. The records show that the property is vested in the wife, Mrs. Eleanor Skillman, but for all that she has commenced suit in Judge Seawell's department of the Superior Court against her husband, Theodore Skillman, to secure a decree of the court that she is the sole owner of the property. It appears that Mrs. Skillman desires to dispose of the property, but owing to the husband claiming an interest in it intended buyers have been frightened off and a sale prevented, as it was not to their liking to invest in a law suit. Theodore Skillman is an old pioneer while his wife is many years his junior. Should the latter succeed in securing the decree she will sell the ranch, to which Mr. Skillman is bitterly opposed.

HIS INJURIES PROVED FATAL

Remond Mullens Who Fell From Scaffolding at California Home Passes Away.

Remond Mullens, a helper to the California Home at Eldridge, who fell from a scaffolding the fore part of last week, succumbed to his injuries last Monday.

The accident was a remarkable one and that Mullens was not instantly killed was simply short of the marvelous. The scaffolding was thirty-three feet in height and eye-witnesses to the accident say that the deceased struck the ground squarely on his head. So great was the impact that the man's head was driven into the soft soil at least three inches. When assistance reached him he was unconscious, but shortly after revived and it was thought for several days he had marvelously escaped with slight injuries. He was up and around up to Sunday last, when he suddenly collapsed and became unconscious and expired the following day, just one week after receiving his injuries. The cause of death was concussion of the brain.

The deceased, who was about 43 years of age, was a comparative stranger here. The remains were brought to this place Thursday and interred in the Catholic cemetery.

Valentine Party.

The S. V. W. C. will give a Valentine party at Schocken's parlors, Saturday evening, February 23d, for the benefit of the library. Admission, a bound book or twenty-five cents. Games, program and refreshments.

Summer Boarders.

Mr. R. X. Ryan, general passenger and freight agent of the Northwestern Pacific railroad, announces in these columns that his company will issue "Vacation, 1907," as usual this year. This neat little pamphlet, descriptive of the charms of Sonoma Valley, is distributed broadcast by the Northwestern Pacific every year. The object of "Vacation" is to advertise our section and bring hither our share of summer visitors. Mr. Ryan urges those of our people who can do so to accommodate those seeking board and rooms here during the spring and summer months and has sent out information blanks for that purpose. His little booklet will make known without cost to our people of the various resorts and private boarding houses that will be thrown open to the general public this season. The information Mr. Ryan seeks must be in his hands by March 1st to enable it to appear in "Vacation."

The collision between the south-bound passenger train on the Southern Pacific road and a freight train at Schellville station on Friday afternoon of last week is graphically described by an eye-witness. The freight train, which was also south-bound, became stalled on the main line and a flag man was sent out to the rear of the freight train, which was a long one, to intercept the passenger train from Santa Rosa, which had the right of way. Before he could do this, however, the passenger train came tearing across the Sonoma creek bridge at about thirty miles an hour. Upon reaching the bridge the engineer, seeing that a collision was inevitable, reversed his engine and applied the emergency brakes and jumped for his life, being followed by the fireman. The next instant the engine hit the rear end of the freight train and with a mighty impact tore its way clear through the two rear cars of the freight, converting them into kindling wood. The engine then came to a stop without leaving the track, although badly demolished.

The collision caused great excitement among the passengers, who were badly shaken up by the terrific impact, although all escaped serious injury except one, a San Francisco man, who was thrown against the stove of the smoker and badly hurt.

The engineer made his leap for life without receiving so much as a scratch. The fireman, however, was not so fortunate and was severely although not seriously cut and bruised about the body.

GLEN ELLEN GRANGE AND SACRAMENTO STATESMEN.

The Horny-Handed Husbandmen Pass Scathing Resolutions.

At a recent meeting of Glen Ellen Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, the following resolutions condemning the actions of the present Legislature were passed and entered on the minutes of the meeting:

WHEREAS, The Legislature of this State, now in session at Sacramento, is employing useless and unnecessary attaches for the sole purpose of providing patronage for distribution to friends and relatives or political henchmen of the members and is thus wasting the hard-earned money of the taxpayers in the State Treasury in shameless disregard of the legislators' moral obligation to their constituents and in plain violation of their oaths of office. Therefore be it

RESOLVED, By Glen Ellen Grange, No. 299, P. of H., in regular meeting assembled, that we condemn the action of our Legislature in this respect, and that we emphatically disapprove the acts of our Representative and Senator in the said Legislature in voting for the employment of such unnecessary and useless attaches and in appointing any of them, and we hereby declare that, by this action, our Representative and Senator in the Legislature have forfeited in respect and confidence reposed in them by their constituents, and should never again be entrusted with any public office.

Resolved, further, that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted by the secretary to each Grange in this State and that we recommend similar action by such Granges, and

Resolved, further, that our Representative in the State Grange be and he is hereby instructed to bring this matter before that body and endeavor to secure similar action thereon.

Resolved, further, that copies of this resolution be sent to the member of the Legislature from this Assembly district, and to the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate, and that a copy be furnished for publication.

The lease covers the entire tract with the exception of the "Castle" and thirty acres of land immediately surrounding it.

Boxing To-Night.

The eight-round scrap between Emile Cornelius of this place and F. Woods of San Francisco is scheduled to take place to-night at O'Rourke's pavilion. The patrons of the game are assured of an exciting knock-out contest by those of our fight fans who are on the inside.

The Woman's Improvement Club of Glen Ellen is very busy just now preparing for the Colonial ball to be given at that place on February 22d. The committee on arrangements led by its energetic chairman is bending every effort towards making this the crowning event of the season. Pike's band will dispense its sweetest music; an appetizing supper will be served and the club hopes to bank a neat little sum towards building a much needed club house. The lot for which purpose has been generously donated by Dr. C. C. O'Donnell.

A TASTE OF BLOOD

(Original)
Jonathan Greenhill was a chimp merchant of Philadelphia. He had several ships afloat, and his son Robert, having a taste for the sea, was given command of one of them, the Pelican. The old man decided to make a voyage with his son on the Pelican and had a stateroom fitted up for him.

The voyage to China was uneventful. Jonathan Greenhill, who was a Quaker of the mildest type, sat much on deck, looking over old ocean's bosom, which thrashed gently, the clouds above, which rolled peacefully, and the sea birds, which sailed gracefully. Nothing could have been more conducive to a deepening of the old man's noncombustible principles.

The voyage out finished and a goodly cargo of silks, tea and other valuables having been taken aboard, the Pelican started for home. She was sailing southward one afternoon on the China sea midway between the Malay peninsula and the island of Borneo when a fog, rankish and thick, appeared on the eastern horizon that especially attracted Captain Robert Greenhill's attention. The old man sat on deck in his chair, absorbed, as usual, in the peacefulness of the scene. The captain went below, and when he returned strange noises were heard underneath.

"What are those sounds, Robert?" asked the father.

"Guns being holed into position behind masked openings. Do you see that vessel? She's a pirate."

"But, Robert," exclaimed the old man, rising in great indignation, "what is she going to do?"

"Fight!"

The father said nothing for some time, then spoke earnestly:

"Robert, these know my principles. If these fight, I cannot help them."

"You can go below, father, and await the issue there."

"What arms have these?"

"I've always carried three guns on each broadside, and I have a plentiful supply of muskets and cutlasses."

"I never knew that, or I would not have allowed it."

"That I knew very well, father."

An hour later the situation was as follows: The Pelican and the pirate were within a mile of each other, both heading for the pirate. The owner of the Pelican was in his stateroom. To enable him to keep his principles he had locked himself in and thrown the key out through a porthole. In doing so he caught sight of the pirate just as she "broke" the skull and bones from her peak, and a few moments later she fired a shot across the Pelican's bows. Mr. Greenhill was expecting to hear some response from the Pelican's guns, but he did not. Since this was in accordance with his professed views he should have been pleased, but he was not. He started to go and see what occasioned the delay, but found the door locked. A profane word was on his lips, but he repressed it. Mounting a stool, he called through an opening above the door:

"Why doesn't that fire, Robert?"

But Robert was too far to hear, besides being otherwise engaged. Jonathan got down from the stool and went to the porthole just in time to see the pirate fire a gun that struck the Pelican within twenty feet of the opening through which he was looking. The pirate was now near enough for him to see the deck swarming with the ugliest lot of yellow-outthroats he had ever looked at.

Again forgetting that the door was locked, he tried to open it. At that moment there were three simultaneous boomings in his own ship, and he ran back to the porthole to get a view. He saw activity on the pirate and new guns run out.

The fight was now well on, and between the boomings were heard sounds of the old man's boat against the door of the stateroom, which finally yielded, and Jonathan Greenhill rushed on deck with a cutlass that he had picked up as he ran.

"Give 'em—more balls, Robert! Why don't these fire faster?"

"All hands ready to repel boarders!" was the captain's only reply, seeing that the pirate was heading in toward the Pelican.

Ten minutes later the pirate had grappled the Pelican and a lot of flegds were climbing aboard. The Pelican's crew were fewer in number, but of a superior race. The Pelican's deck was higher than the pirate's, and as the pirates put their hands on the gunwales they were chopped off by the cutlasses of the Pelican's men. Nevertheless a number of them got aboard, and both sides fought desperately. Finally, when half of those who had boarded were killed, the pirate sheered off and left the rest at the mercy of the Pelican's crew.

Then for the first time Robert Greenhill got a view of his father. The old man, covered with pirate blood, his eyes glaring, was backing away at the remnant of the yellow devils who had sought to take his ship.

"Hold on, father! We'll take them ashore and let the authorities hang them."

Either the old man did not hear or his blood was too hot to heed. He went on hacking and stabbing, and the men, considering his example as an order, went on killing the pirates who were left alive. Then, when there was no more blood to feel Jonathan Greenhill's thirst, he suddenly came to himself. Dropping his cutlass, he went down the companionway, and soon his voice was heard wrestling in prayer for forgiveness for having stained in having not only used the sword, but having killed more pirates than any man aboard the ship.

She Listened.

Miss C's portrait hung on the wall at the exhibition. Miss C. hung around her portrait. Miss C. had tips that an able-bodied man would walk five miles to kiss. Her eyes were twin stars. Upon her forehead hung two beautiful curls, twin curls. Miss C. was delightful to behold. She was immersed in the study of her catalogue. Of course she was not there to listen to the comments.

"Beautiful picture, isn't it?"

"Yes. I wonder if it's true to life."

"I don't know. It's awfully pretty anyway."

"It is pretty. The features are perfect, but I don't think she looks very intelligent."

Miss C., with a crimson face, slapped her book shut and walked away.

An Anxious Boy.
While Archbishop Trench was dean of Westminster he delegated Canon Cureton to preach at the abbey on a certain saint's day. On such days the boys of Westminster school attended service and afterward had the rest of the day as a holiday. While Mr. Cureton, on the morning of the day he was to officiate, was looking over his sermon at the breakfast table his son asked, in a tone vibrating with anxiety:
"Father, is yours a long sermon today?"
"No, Jimmy, not very."
"But how long? Please tell me."
"Well, about twenty minutes, I should say. But why are you so anxious to know?"
"Because, father, the boys say they will thrash me awfully if you are more than half an hour."—London Telegraph.

A Comparison.

A New York lawyer was cross questioning a negro witness in one of the justice courts and was getting along fairly well until he asked the witness what his occupation was. "I's a carpenter, sah." "What calls me a jacklog carpenter, sah?" "What is a jacklog carpenter?" "He is a carpenter who is not a first class carpenter, sah." "Well, explain fully what you understand a jacklog carpenter to be," insisted the lawyer. "Does, I declare I dunno how to 'plain any 'cept to say hit am jes the same diffence 'twixt you and er first class lawyer."

Origin of Ice Cream.

Though the ancient Greeks and Romans used ice for table purposes to get through even hotter weather than we have been having lately, they knew nothing of the "ices." These were introduced into France from Italy about 1630 and known at first as "fromages glaces"—iced cheeses—although they were made of strawberries, apricots, and so forth, and contained not a drop of cream. From 1702 the use of "glaces" in the plural was sanctioned by the academy, but not before 1825 did "une glace" force its way into recognized acceptance. "Ices" are referred to from time to time in the eighteenth century in English people's letters from abroad. "Iced creams," however, were known as early as the year when William of Orange came over, and by the middle of the eighteenth century "ice cream" figured in cookery books.
